Synopsys Taps Veteran Security Leader Jason Schmitt as GM of its Software Integrity Group

Brings Valuable Combination of Technical, Product Development and Go-To-Market Expertise

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif., Aug. 3, 2020 /PRNewswire/ -- Synopsys, Inc. (Nasdaq: SNPS) today announced that Jason Schmitt has joined Synopsys as the general manager of the Software Integrity Group and member of the senior executive team. Schmitt is a seasoned leader with a proven track record of deep technical knowledge, product development, and go-to-market strategy and implementation, providing valuable insight into emerging and rapidly changing cybersecurity challenges.

Schmitt brings more than 20 years of experience in security and enterprise product development and management. Most recently, Schmitt was CEO of Aporeto, an innovative SaaS/cloud company that was purchased by Palo Alto Networks in December of 2019. Prior to Aporeto, he was vice president and general manager of Enterprise Security Products at Hewlett Packard, where he led all aspects of the ArcSight security operations and Fortify application security businesses. Schmitt has also held leadership roles at Barracuda Networks, Steelbox Networks, Ariba, SPI Dynamics and Accenture.

"We are excited to have someone of Jason's caliber and recognized ability to grow and scale cybersecurity businesses," said Chi-Foon Chan, co-CEO of Synopsys. "Our Software Integrity business is an acknowledged leader in the emerging software security and quality testing market, with more than $300 million of revenue and the broadest portfolio available today. We look forward to Jason's leadership in taking the business to the next level, scaling towards our next objective of $500 million to $1 billion."

"It is a privilege to join Synopsys and extend a long history of innovation and market leadership," said Jason Schmitt, general manager of the Software Integrity Group. "As application security transitions to meet the velocity and requirements of DevOps, the unmatched breadth of the Synopsys portfolio and talented team uniquely position Synopsys to help our customers with today's security challenges and to expand our leadership."
